III. LEGAL STANDARD

As the proponent of expert testimony, Bowling bears the burden of establishing its admissibility. See United States v. Williams, 506 F.3d 151, 160 (2d Cir. 2007). Expert testimony is inadmissible unless it (i) is “based on sufficient facts or data” and is “the product of reliable principles and methods” that (ii) the expert has “reliably applied . . . to the facts of the case.”

Fed. R. Evid. 702(b)–(d); Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharm., Inc., 509 U.S. 579, 589 (1993) (expert testimony must be “not only relevant, but reliable”). The Court must probe “whether [the expert’s] reasoning or methodology properly can be applied to the facts in issue.” Daubert, 509 U.S. at 592–93.

Expert testimony submitted in support of class certification is subject to “Daubert’s rigorous standards insofar as that testimony is relevant to the Rule 23 class certification analysis.” Royal Park Invs. SA v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9087, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 10, 2018) (quoting Scott v. Chipotle Mexican Grill, Inc., 315 F.R.D. 33, 55 (S.D.N.Y. 2016)); see also generally Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharms., Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993). Plaintiffs have an obligation under Comcast to establish that “damages are capable of measurement on a classwide basis.” Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 569 U.S. 27, 34–38 (2013) (rejecting a damages model that failed to “translat[e] . . . the legal theory of the harmful event into an analysis of the economic impact of that event” (emphasis in original)). “In determining admissibility under Daubert, trial judges are charged with a gate-keeping function pursuant to Rule 702 whereby they must determine (1) whether the theory or methodology underlying the testimony is reliable and (2) whether the expert’s theory or methodology is relevant in that it ‘fits’ the facts of the case.” Astra Aktiebolag v. Andrx Pharms., Inc., 222 F. Supp. 2d 423, 487 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (citing Daubert, 509 U.S. at 590–91; Kumho Tire Co. v. Carmichael, 526 U.S. 137, 149–50 (1999); Campbell v. Metro. Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 239 F.3d 179, 184–85 (2d Cir. 2001)). A damages methodology is “inadmissible under Daubert” if it “ha[s] no discernible (and, hence, reliable) relation to the facts or theories in [the] case.” Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo & Co., 2010 WL 1233810, at *7–8 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 26, 2010). Moreover, “if the survey suffers from substantial methodological flaws, it will be excluded under both Rule 403 and Rule 702.” Louis attributable to that theory. If the model does not even attempt to do that, it cannot possibly establish that damages are susceptible of measurement across the entire class.”).

Vuitton Malletier v. Dooney & Bourke, Inc., 525 F. Supp. 2d 558, 581 (S.D.N.Y. 2007); see also THOIP v. Walt Disney Co., 690 F. Supp. 2d 218, 236–40 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) (excluding survey that “failed to sufficiently replicate the manner in which consumers encountered the parties’ products in the marketplace, which severely diminishes the reliability and probative force” of the survey).

[REDACTED] Visteon Global Techs., Inc. v. Garmin Int'l, Inc., 2016 WL 5956325, at *5–7, 19 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 14, 2016). Similarly, in Saavedra v. Eli Lilly & Co., plaintiffs alleged that Eli Lilly misrepresented the safety of its antidepressants, and proposed a conjoint analysis to measure consumers’ subjective valuation of the safety claim. 2014 WL 7338930, at *4. The court explained that it “found no case holding that a consumer may recover based on consumers’ willingness to pay irrespective of what would happen in a functioning market (i.e., what could be called sellers’ willingness to sell).” Id. at *5. The court rejected the proposed conjoint model as “highly flawed,” finding that the model only looks at the demand side of the equation (consumer willingness to pay), without looking at the supply side to determine how the product was actually priced. Id. Similarly, in Apple, Inc. v. Samsung Electronics Co., 2014 WL 976898, at *10–11 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2014), the court rejected a conjoint damages model, because it calculated consumers’ “willingness to pay” in a “vacuum,” without relation to actual prices. Id. at *11. There, the court found that the “survey did not account at all for competitor products or other supply,” even though the “serious market competition in the smartphone and tablet industry works to depress prices.” Id. Because the survey did not take into account “the real-world intersection of market demand and market supply,” it could not be used to calculate a price premium. Id. at *12. See also In re NJOY, 120 F. Supp. 3d at 1120.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] in In re Scotts EZ Seed Litigation, 304 F.R.D. 397 (S.D.N.Y. 2015), the feature tested in the conjoint was a claim on packages of grass seed that it would grow lawns “50% thicker with half the water.” Id. 412–15. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] See also Kurtz v. Kimberly-Clark Corp., 321 F.R.D. 482, 551 (E.D.N.Y. 2017) (tested feature was flushability of “flushable” moistened wipes); Khoday v. Symantec Corp., 2014 WL 1281600, at *11 (D. Minn. Mar. 13, 2014) (ability to use software download insurance to redownload software).

. Lyondell Chem. Co. v. Occidental Chem. Corp., 608 F.3d 284, 294 (5th Cir. 2010); see also Kumho, 526 U.S. at 157 (a district court is not required to “admit opinion evidence that is connected to . . . [the case] only by the ipse dixit of the expert.”).

2. Dennis Surveyed the Wrong Universe of Consumers

“For a survey to be valid, the persons interviewed must adequately represent the opinions which are relevant to the litigation.” In re Fluidmaster, Inc., Water Connector Components Prod. Liab. Litig., 2017 WL 1196990, at *29 (N.D. Ill. Mar. 31, 2017); see also Jordache Enters. v. Levi Strauss & Co., 841 F. Supp. 506, 518 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) (citing Universal City Studios, Inc. v. Nintendo Co., 746 F.2d 112, 118 (2d Cir. 1984) (“To be valid, a survey must rely on responses by potential customers of the products in question.”). As the Federal Judicial Center’s Reference Manual on Scientific Evidence explains, “[i]dentification of the proper target population or universe is recognized uniformly as a key element in the development of a survey.” (Reference Manual on Scientific Evidence 376 n.76 (3d ed. 2011).) “The definition of the relevant population is crucial because there may be systematic differences in the responses of members of the population and nonmembers.” (Id. at 377).)

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Courts have repeatedly excluded expert testimony where the expert surveyed the wrong population. For example, in Cumberland Packing Corp. v. Monsanto Co., the court excluded as “unreliable” a survey that used an overbroad population. 140 F. Supp. 2d 241, 245 (E.D.N.Y. 2001). The “relevant universe” in that case was “people with a current interest in purchasing an aspartame-based sugar substitute,” but the universe of survey respondents “was over-inclusive in that it contained ‘users or buyers of sugar substitutes within the past six months.’” Id. Similarly, in 1-800 Contacts, Inc. v. Lens.com, Inc., 2010 WL 5186393, at *6–7 (D. Utah Dec. 15, 2010), the court excluded a survey as unreliable that questioned “individuals who had purchased contacts within the prior twelve months or who intended to purchase contacts within the next twelve months,” where the relevant universe was “consumers who purchase contacts on the Internet.” Id. at *6 (emphasis in original). Since the survey was not limited to “those who purchased contacts on the Internet,” the court concluded that the “survey universe was improper.” Id. at *6–7.
